High Noon at Tusco 2023 Date Change

2023 High Noon at Tusco – September 29th, 30th, and October 1st

We have made the decision to change the dates of High Noon at Tusco 2023. Previously the dates were set for October 6th, 7th, and 8th, 2023. It was brought to my attention that the SASS National Championships, “Land Run” starts on October 7th with the opening ceremonies on Wednesday October 11th.

About 32% of our recent past attendees at High Noon will be shooting at the National Championships in Oklahoma. In an effort to help with travel plans for Land Run and to make it possible for those shooters to attend High Noon at Tusco, we have decided to move our match up one week to Friday, September 29th, Saturday September 30th, and Sunday October 1st. With there being five weekends in September this move was possible. The Tusco Rifle Club was very accommodating for us to make this move. This change is being made for this year only..right now.

I apologize if this causes any inconvenience with scheduling. We decided this was in the best interest of our shooters and for High Noon at Tusco.

Thank you for understanding.

Prairie Dawg's Old West Chronicles

A Compendium of Useful Information

July, 2023

Westerns, in Film, Radio, and Television -- Part 3

Radio's first Western drama appears to have been Death Valley Days, which first aired on September 30, 1930, over NBC's Red network. The series came about when the Pacific Borax Company wanted to sponsor a dramatic show about the Old West (which fit in with the "20 Mule Team" trademark of its cleaning product).

The narrator was the "Old Ranger," who had known the cowboys, prospectors, gamblers, miners, and villains who populated the stories.

The series was immediately popular and ran through September 1951. It transferred to television and had a lengthy run in that medium as well.

Two long-running western series aimed primarily at children debuted in 1933: The Lone Ranger, which was first broadcast from Detroit's WXYZ on January 31, and The Tom Mix Ralston Straight Shooters, which first aired over NBC on September 25.

Both series would last into the early 1950s.

The Lone Ranger, the masked man who rode a great white horse named Silver and fought crime, accompanied by his "faithful Indian companion," Tonto, remains an essential part of American folklore.

The series was not always a prime example of radio storytelling at its best; much of its action was conveyed by a narrator (most memorably, Fred Foy) rather than through dialogue and sound effects.

It was lively and colorful, however, and it remained popular in syndicated reruns.

Singing cowboys of the movies translated well to radio, as proved by the long-running series Gene Autry's Melody Ranch (January 1940–May 1956) and The Roy Rogers Show (November 1944–July 1955).

Another movie cowboy, Buck Jones, had the syndicated series Hoofbeats in 1937, and William Boyd gave Hopalong Cassidy a radio run from 1948 to 1952.

During the 1950s, with westerns dominating television, a flurry of "adult westerns" appeared on radio as well. Among them were Hawk Larabee (which began life as Hawk Durango in 1946) and Tales of the Texas Rangers, starring Joel McCrea, in 1950.

The most influential adult western, Gunsmoke, did for the western what Dragnet had done for the police drama by eschewing cartoonish characters and substituting the grit, grime, and blood of the Old West.

The cast was headed by William Conrad, whose deep rumbling voice gave the character of U.S. Marshal Matt Dillon an instant authority and an air of tragedy. Producer-director Norman MacDonnell and head writer John Meston gave the show a realistic quality never heard before: the sound-effects team caught every nuance, making the listener see the worn wooden boardwalk and taste the dust of Dodge City.

Gunsmoke was violent yet compassionate, grim yet often warmly funny. Arriving at the end of radio's Golden Age (airing from April 26, 1952, to June 18, 1961), Gunsmoke was one of the medium's finest programs.

The Best of Old Time Radio Westerns

For years radio westerns were juvenile programs that played on Saturday mornings.

All of that changed in the 1950s, however, when a new era of adult westerns began. Sadly, radio dramas were simultaneously being edged out by television. As a result, we lost a treasure trove of outstanding radio programming.

Employing smartly written scripts for adults, extremely talented Hollywood actors, advanced sound effects and outstanding production values, the Radio Westerns listed below were truly some of the best Old Time Radio Shows that were ever produced.

Welcome to Fort Laramie, an outstanding radio program that centered on a lonely cavalry outpost on the edge of the Western front in the 1870s.

The CBS series starred Raymond Burr as Captain Lee Quince, captain of cavalry.

Major Ned Daggart, played by Jack Moyles, was in command.

The major and the captain, it might be noted, did not always see eye-to-eye on matters.

Fort Laramie depicted what life must have been like on a cavalry post during the late 19th Century. The fort had 400 soldiers, along with many wives. The command was charged with supervising 4,000 Sioux Indians on a nearby reservation.

Many of the stories provided a woman's point-of-view, which was a refreshing change to the shoot-em-up juvenile radio westerns of earlier years.

J.B. Kendall, the Frontier Gentleman, provided an Englishman's account of life and death in the West. As a reporter for the London Times, he wrote unusual and colorful stories. But as a man with a gun, he lived and became a part of the violent years in the new territory.

This truly unique radio program only ran for one year. Such a pity, because it was one of the best shows produced in the 1950s. Frontier Gentleman was produced and directed by Antony Ellis, who also wrote many of the scripts. The storylines were unique and offered fictional eye-witness accounts of actual historical places and events.

Kendall was somewhat of an enigma. Trained in the British military, he fought in India and learned survival skills. Presumably from a wealthy family, he also was taught the traits of a gentleman.

Have Gun, Will Travel played on the CBS network from November, 1958 to November, 1960 -- making the show one of the last radio dramas featuring continuing characters. There were 106 episodes in all.

The show had the distinction of being the only substantive radio show that had its genesis on television, it being an adaptation of television series of the same name.

John Dehner portrayed played Paladin, a gun for hire with a twist: Paladin had principles and often stood up for the little guy.

His home base was the Carlton Hotel in San Francisco in the 1870s, where he was attended to by Hey Boy, a Chinese houseman played by Ben Wright, and Missy Wong, a housekeeper (and Hey-Boy's girlfriend) played by Virginia Gregg.

Each episode generally began and ended at the Carlton, where Paladin would have a visitor or receive a telegram requesting his services. Amazingly, he traveled throughout most of the Western United States, often by train, stagecoach, or even pack mule, in order to reach his assignment.

The initial episodes were adaptations of scripts used on the television show. Eventually, however, original stories were produced.

Paladin's business card read, quite simply: Have Gun, Will Travel.

One of everyone's favorite old-time radio westerns, The Six Shooter starred James Stewart as Britt Ponset, a drifting cowboy in the final years of the wild west.

The stories were sometimes serious western dramas, sometimes farcical, whimsical comedies. They were always entertaining.

One of the outstanding features of the program was Stewart's narration. It was particularly good when he would whisper the narrative during particularly suspenseful scenes -- creating a wonderful sense of drama.

Each episode opened with this nostalgic dialog: "The man in the saddle is angular and long-legged. His skin is sun-dyed brown. The gun in his holster is gray steel and rainbow mother-of-pearl, its handle unmarked. People call them both "the Six Shooter".

Featuring Jimmy Stewart in what he described as one of his favorite roles.

Tales of the Texas Rangers was a modern Western at the same time it was a police procedural drama. The show aired on NBC Radio from 1950 to 1952.

Film star Joel McCrea played the fictitious Texas Ranger Jace Pearson, who used the latest scientific techniques to solve crimes. His faithful horse, Charcoal helped Pearson track down his prey. While the majority of crimes on the show involved the use of automobiles, it was very common for circumstances to require Pearson to ride Charcoal while in pursuit of a criminal -- thus giving the show a modern-day western feel.

Tales of the Texas Rangers used stories from the actual files of the Texas Rangers. With the exception of name changes and location modifications, the show claimed to faithfully reenact actual cases.

Winchester 109543 24 12 Ga Side/Side Double Barrel Blue

Winchester Model 24 SXS Shotgun. 2-3/4" chambers Full Choke and Modified. Mfg date: 1952. The Model 24 competes with the Stevens 311 and Savage/Fox Model B as an affordable, utility SXS and a total of over 116,200 were Mfgd. The Model 24 is a true hammerless gun, as opposed to having concealed hammers like most double guns, since it is striker fired. It was produced only as a field grade gun with blued receiver and barrels, wide 7/16" raised solid rib, smooth black walnut stock with lacquer finish, double triggers, and spring powered extractors that elevates the shells when the gun is opened. The forged steel receiver body of the Model 24 is rounded. The Model 24 was designed with two lumps, one centered beneath each barrel, leaving a tunnel of space between the two lumps. It has a clean breech face and is held closed by a single underbolt that engages a notch in the double barrel lumps. In the area between the 24's dual lumps is a cocking slide and the extractor. The Model 24 is about as wide through the breech and receiver as a SXS gun can be. The weight is about 7-1/2 pounds. It is a 12 Ga gun with 30" barrels. It measures 46-1/2" in overall length and has a 14-1/4" length of pull. Approximate drop is 1-1/2" at comb and 2-1/2" at heel. $500

News & Notes

Six Stages

We shoot six stages at Tusco. A few people have told us that they drive a good distance to shoot at Tusco and would like to shoot as much as possible.

Obviously we only have room for five shooting bays. So what we do is shoot the first stage you start on twice. Consider it a warm up stage. Only five stages will be scored. You can take your best time on your first stage. If you don't want to shoot it twice you do not have to. This would provide more shooting for our shooters.

New SASS Magazine

With the new release of the SASS Quarterly Cowboy Chronicle, I once again would like to start collecting any unwanted issues of the magazine. We will use these for our promotional events, like our Tusco Long Riders' Day at Kames Sports. Please either black out or cut off your name and address or I will do it before they are passed out. Thank you!

Facebook Page

When you make a post about Tusco or share pictures on Facebook, include #TuscoLongRiders. Let everyone see what we are all about.

A little bit about us

Jim & I have always wanted a family of our own. Although we love our 5 fur kids, we long for a baby. After learning we were unable to conceive a child, Jim and I decided to pursue the adoption of a newborn. Adoption costs are astronomical (anywhere from 25k to 50k or higher) and although we were able to raise some with our savings, GoFundMe page, and church donations, we are still lacking the funds needed to apply for a match. We decided to take our love of crafting and open a side business to hopefully raise some more funds for our future family. Designs By Scamper is a tribute to our pup Scamper who passed away in 2015 from cancer.
